The police officer who was involved in an infamous “dogpile” arrest that sparked riots in New York last summer has resigned, a law enforcement source told The Post. Cops from the “Tango” NYPD unit beat and tackled a homeless man on the subway tracks after they mistook his sleeping bag for drugs on a Manhattan platform in June, an incident that was caught on video and caused outrage among anti-violence activists. “After his arrest, [the officer] was made the center of attention in the media and on social media,” the source told The Post. “His workplace asked him to resign and he did.” The two-man NYPD unit had been patrolling the 34th Street-Herald Square stop on the No 3da54e8ca3
